Dental Work in Schools.

Dental work in schools has long since passed the experimental stage. Its value has for years been acknowledged by the school authorities, dentists and members of the medical profession. The general public has been slower to see the worth of this work, but is awakening to it. At first the feeling was more or less general that the care of the teeth of school children was a matter which concerned the parents alone. In practice this theory did not work. Many parents could not or would not have the teeth of their children properly cared for. The general health of the children, and therefore their progress in school, was directly affected, making it a matter of direct concern to the school authorities, as well as to the taxpayers.

The development of dental inspection has been almost entirely within the last dozen years, although a free dental clinic was established in Rochester, N. H., over a quarter of a century ago. This was not strictly a school clinic, although work with school children was done. The general public, however, had not been educated up to the idea and after two years the movement failed for lack of support.

It was not until fifteen years later that dental work for school children was first seriously started in Germany. This was followed by similar work in England and soon after in the United States. Once the movement was fairly started it spread rapidly. This development was due to the awakening to the importance of dental conditions and even more to the publication of the findings of school physicians employed in the work of medical inspection. These reports have shown with convincing consistency that a large proportion of school children are suffering from decayed teeth. These conditions do not obtain in one state or country alone; they seem common to every civilized community.

While conditions are better in Oklahoma than in most other states, medical inspection in a number of schools under the direction of the state board of health showed conclusively the benefits which would result from dental work. Only a small percentage of our school children have perfect teeth. It is true that in most cases they can be easily corrected if treated in time, while if unheeded they tend to become much more serious.

Notice of the Meeting of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Say Money is Plentiful.

New York, Sept. 9.—All the hotels have their quota of buyers, but there close to the business centers of the city are crowded with men and women from every portion of the United States who have come here to purchase new stock, mainly for next winter and for the autumn trade. All the buyers agree that never before in their experience has there been so much money in the country. Never has there been such a demand for goods and never have prices been so high as now. They are delighted with the volume of business, but they don't like the high prices. So, girls, it will cost considerable more for everything you wear this fall. Whether it is the damned old war or the manufacturers trying to get even, it is not known.

Trouble from a New Source.

This is the time of troubles. It seems that each day brings its new load of worry. Now it is the wall paper man, who tells us that wall paper is scarce. Not the ordinary wall paper, of course, but the colored designs, especially red. Owing to the rise in price of most dyes and other materials, the manufacturers are confronted with the hideous fact of a higher cost for their product and no certainty of being able to raise the price of all wall paper. So they have been driven to the bitter expedient of not showing any samples of red or other dark colored papers. All persons requiring red wall papers for "boudoir rooms" such as New York hotel once proposed, or for other apartments, will have to wait another year. Red papered rooms are calculated to drive hotel guests to suicide, as well as to hide the stains.

Hygiene Culture in Schools.

A new system of health care and hygiene instructions will be put into effect in every public school in New York City coincident with their opening this year. The lessons in hygiene will be simple and direct. They will deal with practical health and place far in the background the usual book considerations of anatomy, skeletons, bones and cells. The schedule will be adapted by teachers to local conditions and will be written out by each parent and mounted attractively and taken home for parents to see and to remain, so far as anything can, a guide for the children. For several days give directions for rising, exercise, bathing, the care of teeth and mouth, dressing, eating, and the routine of daily life.

Don't Paint With Mud!

What is in paint is as important as how paint is put on. The best painter in the land cannot make worthless mixtures of crushed rock and ground earths stay put. Imitation paint lacks the clinching qualities and elasticity that paint made of

Dutch Boy Collier White Lead

and pure linseed oil possesses. It is most durable, beautiful and economical, whether used on interior or exterior surfaces.

Drop in to see us, phone or write, if you are interested in painting of the better kind. We are specialists. Let us show you some harmonious color combinations and help solve your knotty paint problems.
